

The Antix Games Warehouse

Resources and Services for the Storing of Games and Assets

Distribute via Multiple Channels

The Antix Warehouse was set up to make it easy and cost-effective for games publishers to distribute their content through multiple Antix-authorized sales channels. By connecting with Antix channel partners, publishers can access new routes to market and revenue. The warehouse facilitates Channel partners discovery and sourcing games. Provisioning content via the Antix Warehouse removes the resource and maintenance constraints traditionally associated with bringing new content to market.

Access to the warehouse is supported through an internet connection using a browser and is granted to Publishers and Channel Partners who have enrolled into the linked Antix programs: Developer Program, Publisher Program, or the Channel Partner Program.

Warehouse Features

Publisher Zone

Once access to the Antix Warehouse is authorised, publishers can configure and manage company, product [Game] and user information via a secure, bespoke "Publisher Dashboard" enabling:

- User administration and management;
- Product management;
- Asset management;
- Channel promotion & development;
- Channel contract management.

Channel Zone

The Antix Warehouse is a primary source for manufacturers and stores to discover new games and obtain game upgrades, source product related assets and to connect with publishers:

- Choose the profile of games included with a handset, TV or other device to best match the requests of your clients and consumers;
- View the available titles and select the content to ship pre-loaded on, for example, an SD card, the device itself or for sale via an app store;
- Play games as trials, within a browser window so that product managers can view and try the game on both PC and handsets to confirm their selection;
- Source games, game assets and promotional material;
- Manage your portfolio of selected titles;
- Access site charts and statistics;
- Receive publisher product news and promotions;
- Access and participate in events.
